Annual Report 2010

MESSAGE FROM CHIEF OF POLICE – CORY L. McMULLAN

The Belleville Police Service strategic business plan 2010-2012 sets the strategic directions, priorities and goals to achieve our Police Service's mandate and statutory responsibilities, leading us to our vision of Service Excellence. As part of the 2010 annual report the value of a progress report on the Service's progress in achieving these goals and objectives became evident. Identifying areas where expectations have been exceeded and or achieved and areas that require further development and dedication of human and fiscal resources will assist with the continued efforts of our members and the community in ensuring community safety.

Throughout 2010 our Service, members and the community have faced and overcome many challenges. We as a Service, as a community and as individuals have accomplished much and with continued partnerships and commitments our community will continue to benefit. The Belleville Police Service will work closely with elected officials at all levels of government and with community organizations to build a strong and safe Belleville. Safety issues that impact our ability to build a strong, vibrant, and safe community must be continually addressed in an efficient and effective manner. A safe community helps to support a strong economy which in turn supports many other systems within our community.

I would like to take this opportunity to extend appreciation to all members of the Belleville Police Service for their commitment to serving the citizens of Belleville with distinction, the members of the Police Service Board for their support, guidance and governance and the members of the community for their support and contributions in enhancing safety in our community.

Overview

The Belleville Police Service's Annual Report provides feedback to all members of our community on the performance of the Belleville Police Service over the past year. New to this year's Annual Report, it will also chart the organization's progress towards meeting the goals and actions within the 2010 – 2012 Strategic Business Plan. The Service's overall performance throughout 2010 is in part reflected through various performance objectives that are listed in this Strategic Business Plan. These measures are also in line with the legislative and regulatory standards as reflected in Section 30(1) of the Adequacy Standards Regulations as set forth by the Ontario Ministry of Community Safety & Correctional Services. An electronic copy of the 2010 – 2012 Strategic Business Plan can be located on the Service's website located at www.police.belleville.on.ca. Hard copies can be obtained by contacting the Office of the Chief of Police. In the tables that follow under the Section "Annual Performance – Progress of the 2010 – 2012 Strategic Business Plan", those areas that have been achieved are listed in blue, other areas in red are still being completed in the second half of the plan. In most cases the second half of the plan will see a series of surveys being conducted throughout the community at a variety of levels.

The Belleville Police Service remains dedicated to meeting the needs of our community and our members now, and into the future. Since 1836 the Belleville Police Service has served this community and has grown as the community has grown. Over that time there have been a variety of challenges that together have been faced, and overcome. 2010 was no different, and through the dedication of the members of the Service and the community at large, the Service has accomplished much. Key accomplishments and selected initiatives have been highlighted throughout this report.

1 – CRIME PREVENTION

Improved visibility of our front line officers in all neighbourhoods in our community will assist us in meeting our motto of being “Partners With The Community”. Neighbourhood Policing is an approach to delivering police services defined by geographic boundaries. These “zone” or “neighbourhood” officers are the consistent and prominent police presence. This consistency enables the police and the public to work together to resolve areas of common concern. These neighbourhood policing teams, deployed at the right places, at the right times and in the right numbers are required to create safe neighbourhoods.

Improved visibility of police resources in all neighbourhoods will foster a positive feeling among the residents. This positive feeling will translate into open lines of communication, increased commitment to problem solving, increased pride in the neighbourhood, and ultimately a more holistic approach to total crime prevention. Improving the efficiency of first contact with our police service, including enhanced choice of how, when and where to access Service resources, will reinforce confidence in our abilities, expedite the deployment of resources to emergent situations, and assist in ensuring patrol officers have adequate proactive time available in their neighbourhoods.

Goal 1.1 To provide consistent deployment of police resources, while optimizing the effectiveness of every community contact.

All complaints against police officers are reported to the Office of the Independent Review Director (OIPRD) pursuant to the Police Services Act. 2010 was the first full year for the new system as it came into effect October 19th, 2009. Under this process all complaints are to be forwarded to the OIPRD to be recorded and screened consistent with the legislation. Once screened by the staff at the OIPRD, they are then forwarded to police for investigation or for information. In some cases the complaints are not proceeded with as they do not meet the criteria set forward.

In 2010 of the 20 Complaints forwarded to the OIPRD concerning the Belleville Police Service, only 11 required investigation compared to 14 investigations in 2009. The chart above depicts the changes in complaint classifications from 2009 to 2010.

In part the increased number of reported complaints is due to the Service's and OIPRD's public awareness strategy. The Belleville Police Service has an easy to follow link for people to follow from the Belleville Police Service website to the OIPRD. In previous years, there was no formal reporting structure for complaints that were received, but were not investigated with.

A Chief's Complaint is an internal investigation conducted in relation to the actions of a member that falls outside of the mandate of the OIPRD and can include civilian members of the Police Service.
